

Social Siberia?

GOOP director of brand partnerships and Instagram influencer Marissa Fuchs, whose "surprise" engagement — complete with a pitch deck sent to brands — went viral last "been called" following the arguably lackluster stunt, according to a source. Page Six heard fashionista titling in the Hamptons this weekend that Fuchs — who goes by the handle @fashionambitionist on the social platform, where she has 184,000 followers — had tried to attend a party hosted by Heidi at Crow's Nest on Thursday in Montauk, LI. "She wasn't invited and was turned away," says a source. "She's been snubbed." But a source close to Fuchs insists she was at the spot with pals for dinner, and spontaneously decided to go down to the lake — where the bath was held — to have a drink with a view. "It was a private event, and she asked to go in for one drink and the guard told her, 'If I let in one person, [I] have to let in 20,'" Fuchs gained international attention back in June when she was sent on a multi-day scavenger hunt.

In the mood for meditation

KATIE Couric described to a Hamptons crowd how transcendental meditation helps her manage her schedule, but most importantly how it helps victims of domestic violence and veterans suffering from PTSD. Couric hosted the 15-year anniversary of the David Lynch Foundation in Bridgehampton on Friday. Foundation CEO and TM guru Bob Roth, who has taught a host of big names including Oprah Winfrey, Tom Hanks, and recently, Jared Kushner and Ivanka Trump, says the technique is effective in lowering stress, improving brain function and creativity. The foundation is also about to start teaching in some NY schools. TM has swept Wall Street, largely thanks to billionaire Ray Dalio who hails it as the secret to his success. Aptly, "Billions" co-creator Brian Koppelman was also there and told how he does TM before he writes the Wall Street saga. Attendees included foundation vice chair Mark Axelowitz, divorce attorney Nancy Chemtob and producer Joanna Plafsky.

Look to your left for these two dog lovers — who was killed by a car in New York while out with a walker last week. "I miss you, Waldo," Turner wrote on social media after they both got tation of the pup on their arms. "Rest in peace my little baby," Jones wrote in his Instagram caption.
